

ReIMAGINE!

By the numbers

2011

With gratitude to God
& all our partners.

34

Cities visited

(with Jesus Dojo groups starting in many of these places).

7,064

Books in circulation

(Not including 3,500 Danish &
Norwegian translation copies)

15,087

People directly
impacted by our work

The mission of ReIMAGINE is to help people become revolutionized by the life & teachings of Jesus and to empower leaders who can revolutionize their communities.

We do this by communicating vision inviting people into transformational experiments and
developing leaders.

5

Group retreats led by Mark

6

- Consult visits with intentional Christian communities:
- Skype video chats w/ book study groups:

8

Book release events (U.S. & EU)

10

- City training events w/ 222 total participants
- Conference & Festival gigs
- Articles written for magazines & websites

12

University
speaking
engagements

14

Media
interviews:
radio, film,
print &
podcast

Teaching in 15

Churches

67

One time
lunch, dinner
or coffee
appointments

46 Donors

29

Mentoring Relationships
Facilitated by quarterly one-on-one's

4

ONGOING LOCAL INITIATIVES:

ReIMAGINE
Tribes

Friends of Garfield Park

San Francisco
Faith Leaders Collective

Terruño
Bay Area
Emerging
Leaders Cohort

SEVEN Short Term Projects

- Practicing the Way of Jesus Book
- JesusDojo.com
- Book Promotional Videos
- Wild Goose Festival Opening Ceremony
- Bernal Dwellings Food Pantry
- Silicon Valley Project (new community)
- Animate Video series on faith basics

Love, Joy and Peace from the Scandrettes to you!

The advent season offers us the opportunity to reflect on time and the meaning of our lives. Ancient prophecies announced the coming of a Chosen One with normality disrupted by the scandal of the Divine becoming one of us--in the form of homeless baby no less. This season prompts us to wonder when and where the next turn or sign of completion will come. The Judeo/Christian story paints a picture of time as divine drama, with a future that is open, full of hope and surprise, where the details of our lives matter and we are part of a larger story of love's final triumph over fear and greed.

It's been an amazing year for our family and we are in that place in life where so much is changing: the end of homeschooling in sight, kids starting first jobs and college, midlife shifts and many new horizons for serving, loving, growing and creating. It's a time of complex family scheduling--when you have to wait in line a long time to use our one bathroom. When we were 20 we imagined the kind of life we wanted to cultivate as a family and now that it's nearly come to fruition, we are beginning to wonder, "What's next?" (Probably not a new city or vastly different work, but definitely a new rhythm and season.)

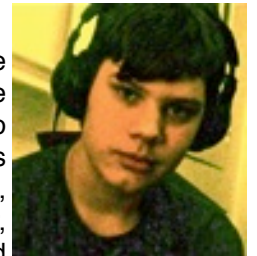

Hailey (17) started taking classes at City College this year and is working part-time at the Marsh Theater doing secretarial work and assisting the director of Marsh Youth Theater. This has provided her with the opportunity to learn the nuts and bolts of running a community theater. In addition to rehearsing the current show, she helped to write the script, and also served as a counselor in the theater's summer camps. She also organized a very successful performing arts fundraiser for earthquake relief in Japan. (Videos from the fundraiser can be viewed on her youtube channel at, <http://www.youtube.com/user/BugabooBirdie>) Hailey has been dating her boyfriend, Jonah, for more than two years and will turn 18 in February. She plans to go to San Francisco State University in the fall, majoring in Theater and Psychology.

Noah (16) works part-time as an Explainer at the Exploratorium, an internationally recognized hands on science museum. He bikes across town to his job, which involves conducting science demonstrations and experiments for museum visitors: card tricks, a drawing board activity, the dissection of cow eyeballs and others. This summer, in partnership with a staff scientist, he helped develop a new museum demonstration on acid/base chemistry and color change. He continues to pursue photography in his spare time and with the income from his job has been able to purchase new and better equipment.

Isaiah (15) now stands at 6'1", eats like a horse and is still growing. (Only time will tell whether he will catch up to Noah who is currently 6'5"). He has become a pretty serious theater kid, performing in two shows this year, showing off his singing, acting and dancing talents. He loves music and can often be heard playing the ukulele, guitar, melodica or violin. In his spare time he loves to relax, read and play video games. He has several good buddies that he enjoys hanging out with and takes the train to visit friends down the Peninsula.

Some highlights of our year were (1) the release of Mark's new book, Practicing the Way of Jesus, (2) a family trip to Alaska with Mark's extended family and (3) a three week visit to Scandinavia where we celebrated our 20th wedding anniversary and spoke together at various Christian festivals. This year we also enjoyed volunteering together at the Bernal Dwellings housing project and with Friends of Garfield Park, a group we started with our neighbors and folks from Tribe. Our work with ReIMAGINE has grown and developed in some amazing ways this year! If you are looking to do some year-end giving, we would love your support. Donations are tax deductible and can be sent to ReIMAGINE P.O. Box 411601 S.F., CA 94141